Nurse leader Julie Nyhus has been named editorial director of American Nurse Journal.

DOYLESTOWN, PA — HealthCom Media (HCM), the publisher of American Nurse Journal, today announced the appointment of Julie Nyhus, MSN, FNP-BC, RN, as editorial director, effective May 5, 2025.

Ms. Nyhus comes to American Nurse Journal with extensive publishing experience and demonstrated leadership in editorial excellence. As a clinical medical writer at EBSCO, she has been responsible for researching, updating, editing, and writing evidence-based support tools for nurses and allied health professionals. Additional experience in health publications includes freelance work for renowned publications such as American Nurse Journal, The Nurse Practitioner Journal, and Nursing2020. She has honed her writing, editing, and peer review skills, always ensuring the clinical relevance and timeliness of the content.

"I'm excited about the opportunity to lead a talented editorial team and collaborate with internal and external partners to develop innovative and engaging content," said Ms. Nyhus. "My strong leadership and team management skills will enable me to foster collaboration and maintain high standards for editorial quality."

Ms. Nyhus has over 20 years of experience as a healthcare professional and significant involvement in health publications. Her background as an advanced practice nurse, with licenses in Illinois and Indiana and board certification as a family nurse practitioner, has provided her with a deep understanding of healthcare trends, nursing issues, and clinical content. This knowledge, combined with her Master of Science in nursing and Bachelor of Arts in communication, equips her to develop content that aligns with the needs of nursing professionals and supports HCM's business goals.

Ms. Nyhus earned her BA in Communication from Jones University and her MSN from OSF Saint Francis College of Nursing.

Ms. Nyhus will work in collaboration with Cheryl (Cherie) Mee, MSN, MBA, RN, FAAN, who has been with American Nurse Journal since 2021.
